

Andrea Musher was born in Chicago, but during the formative years from 5-18 resided in the Maryland suburbs outside Washington DC. She received a BA cum laude from Cornell University in Ithaca, New York (Major: English, Minor: Theater Arts) where she studied with the poets, William Matthews and A.R. Ammons. Both her M.A. and Ph.D. are from UW-Madison where she took and then taught some of the first classes offered in Women's Studies. Her Ph.D. Thesis is entitled, Vital Connection: The Poetics of Maternal Affiliation in the Poetry of Sylvia Plath, Anne Sexton, Adrienne Rich, Lucille Clifton and Judy Grahn. Currently, She is an Associate Professor at UW-Whitewater; She teaches classes in the Department of Languages and Literatures as well as in the Department of Women's Studies.
