Map 8-1 Historical Resources

INTRODUCTION

The community has long valued Madison’s historic and cultural resources, and numerous public and private (including not-for profit) organizations have been established to preserve and enhance these important resources. The primary municipal agencies created for these purposes are the Madison Landmarks Commission and the Madison Arts Commission.

The Madison Landmarks Commission was created in 1971. As stated in the Madison General Ordinances establishing the Commission: “It is hereby declared a matter of public policy that the protection, enhancement, perpetuation and use of improvements of special character or special historical interest or value is a public necessity and is required in the interest of health, prosperity, safety and welfare of the people.” Since its creation, the Landmarks Commission has established five historic districts and 165 historic landmarks. The City also contains 14 National Register Districts (excluding the UW-Madison campus) and several dozen sites on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Madison Arts Commission (which changed its name from the Madison CitiARTS Commission in 2005) was created by an ordinance in 1974. Madison’s General Ordinances state the purpose of this Commission as: “With the understanding that all people need and are capable of responding to artistic expressions, and that the arts enhance the quality of civic and personal life, the City of Madison is committed to a civic policy which supports the unique value of the arts in all their variety. Through sponsoring artistic activities of its citizens, the City recognizes that a culturally diverse and proud community is one true expression of a democratic society.”

Madison Arts Commission Signature Grants support local arts in Madison.

The Gates of Heaven Synagogue was one of the first major accomplishments of historic preservation in Madison.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION

LOCAL HISTORIC DISTRICTS

Madison's five local historic districts have been created to recognize and protect identified areas of the City that are of particular historic, architectural, or cultural significance. Each district has a specific set of criteria against which all new construction, alterations and demolitions are reviewed to ensure that the essential character of these districts and the significant structures within them is maintained. These districts are depicted on Volume I, Map 8-1 at the end of this Chapter and are listed below:

- Mansion Hill Historic District
- Third Lake Ridge Historic District
- University Heights Historic District
- Marquette Bungalows Historic District
- First Settlement Historic District

HISTORIC LANDMARKS

Landmark designation may be placed on sites (natural or improved) and structures of particular historic, architectural, or cultural significance to the City whether or not they are located within a historic district. Similar to the districts, however, criteria have been established against which all new construction, alterations and demolitions are reviewed. A listing of designated landmarks can be found in Table 8-1 at the end of this chapter.

NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES IN MADISON

There are 14 National Register Districts (excluding the UW-Madison campus) in Madison. These districts are shown on Volume I, Map 8-1. There are also many properties listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Property owners that are within Register areas are eligible to receive Federal and/or State Historic Preservation Tax Credits to finance historically sensitive rehabilitation. The City does not administer these programs; information can be obtained at the Wisconsin Historical Society. A listing of National Register properties can be found in Table 8-2 at the end of this chapter.

NATIVE AMERICAN MOUNDS

There are a number of Native American mounds located throughout the city. Table 8-3 at the end of this chapter lists the known mounds and is based on Wisconsin Historical Society inventories and information collected by City and County staff. The sites on this list are in the process of being confirmed by the Wisconsin Historical Society.

THE ARTS

Madison offers a wealth of cultural opportunities usually associated with much larger metropolitan areas. Madison's numerous performing arts attractions, galleries and museums provide many opportunities to enjoy the arts.

PERFORMING ARTS

Madison also offers a dynamic performing arts scene. The Overture Center for the Arts brings in national touring productions but also houses local production companies like the Madison Repertory Theater and the Madison Children's Theater. In addition, the Madison Symphony Orchestra and the Madison Chamber Orchestra both make the Overture Center their home. Dance companies are also thriving.

Madison has many cultural festivals and events.

The Madison Ballet is a resident company of the Overture Center and has plans to open a school dedicated to teaching dance. In addition, several University of Wisconsin-Madison dance professors have national careers and have started dance companies outside of the University. Madison also offers nightly music opportunities at many local clubs, restaurants and bars. A growing number of festivals have also increased Madison's art offerings. The Wisconsin Film Festival, Madison Rep Fall Festival of Plays, Madison Opera in the Park, and the Wisconsin Book Festival all take place in Madison.

GALLERIES AND MUSEUMS

Madison offers a wealth of public and privately owned gallery spaces. Local visual artists have opportunities to display works of two- and three-dimensional works of art at local coffee shops, galleries and Museums. Although the Madison Museum of Contemporary Art (MMoCA) and the University of Wisconsin-Madison's Chazen Museum have a permanent collection and have international and national traveling exhibitions, both own works of art by local artists and often have exhibitions devoted to local artists.

Historic and Cultural Resources

The Madison Museum of Contemporary Art is located in the new Overture Center for the Arts, which also houses the Wisconsin Academy of Arts and Sciences' James Watrous Gallery. This gallery features contemporary, rotating exhibitions by Wisconsin artists. Residents and visitors of Madison can also visit the Madison Children's Museum, the Wisconsin Veterans Museum and the Wisconsin Historical Society. Several small, independent galleries have opened in Madison, while venerable galleries have remained strong in showing local art works. In addition to coffee houses displaying local works of art, several office buildings display works of art, as do branches of the Madison Library.

ART IN CITY BUILDING

Both public and private entities are involved in shaping the future of the City, and the treatment of public and quasi-public spaces (i.e. streetscapes, plazas, etc.) greatly influence the character of the neighborhood and the community overall. As such, city buildings and public spaces provide unique opportunities to enhance the aesthetic of the public space and contribute to the overall design of the City. In recognition of this potential, the City is beginning to take the lead in incorporating public art or a higher level of design into a variety of City projects.

ARTS EDUCATION

The Madison Arts Commission has provided arts education programming for youth for several years. Currently the Commission awards annual grants for community based organizations to incorporate arts curriculum and activities into their programming.

ACCESS TO THE ARTS

One of the cornerstones of the Arts Commission is providing leadership in making the arts accessible to all within the community. One of the activities the Commission is engaged in is providing grants to arts and community organizations for activities that will make many types of art (visual, performing, literary) available to youth, minority, and other segments of the population who may not otherwise have such opportunities. The City also maintains a collection of pieces that have been donated or purchased over the years.

Art Education Programming

ARTS RESOURCES PLANS AND PROGRAMS

The Madison Arts Commission is responsible for a variety of activities to promote the arts in the community. In addition to the activities described above, the Commission oversees the activities listed below, as well as leading efforts in arts planning and policy matters as they relate to the economic development and urban design goals of the City.

- Public Art Framework and Fieldguide.

The Public Art Framework and Field Guide allows for the Madison Arts Commission to work with other City agencies in identifying public art opportunities found in City Buildings through the Capital Development budget process. In addition, the plan outlines programming initiatives for temporary public art, gifts of art to the City, Private Development art services and an extensive maintenance program.

- Madison Arts Commission Grants.

Provides arts project grants to individuals and performing artists and to non-profit art groups to enrich the cultural life of the City of Madison and its residents. Grants are made for general and neighborhood arts activities.

- ArtWORKS! Grants.

A Neighborhood-Center Based Arts Education Program, ArtWORKS! places artists and educators in the neighborhood centers' after-school programs for the school year to work with under served children. Program goals are to improve academic performance, develop success through life-building skills and to make the arts accessible to all of Madison's children.

- City Gallery Space.

The CitiARTS space provides a high traffic exhibition space in the Madison Municipal Building for local visual artists to exhibit their work. The goal of the program is to provide exposure for local artists' work.

- Public Art Ventures.

- Municipal Art Fund.

Madison's Mayor meets with Madison Arts Commission Grants recipients using stencils and spray chalk to make washable graffiti encouraging people to vote.
