

CENTRAL POLICE DISTRICT

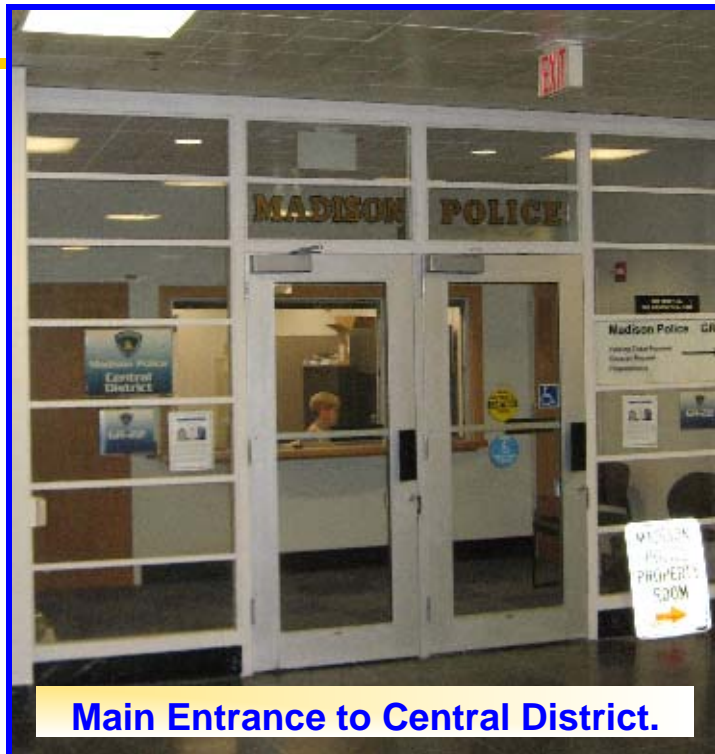

WE'VE MOVED

As many of you know, for the past 7 to 12 months the staff of the Central District had been displaced to temporary office spaces while the City-County Building space was remodeled/updated.

The CCB space had been occupied by the police department since the late 1950s, and most of the updates were done on a small scale to meet the needs of the department as the times changed. The space was adjusted with temporary-style walls and storage space in every hallway. The organization of the department changed as new technology was used to address crime problems. With the growth of the department and changes to the policing profession, we essentially outgrew our space. The flow of the workspace was disjointed and not efficient. Thus the remodel was needed.

Our official move back occurred during the week of July 20, 2009. This is the first time since May of 2008 that all of the Central District staff is working out of the same building.

As with any building project, we are still adjusting back into the remodeled space and waiting for odds and ends to be put into place. I have not yet finished unpacking files and office materials.

There are some features that are of interest to the community. The lobby entrance is staffed by our district assigned Police Report Typist Linda Croxford. Next to the front entry is the Central District Community Room. With access off of the main hallway it is available for meetings. The room seats about 40 and has a television/monitor available for presentations. The addition of meeting space that can be used by all city staff and citizens is very welcome. For those of you who have attended meetings or tried to schedule a gathering in the CCB you know what a precious commodity meeting space can be.

Briefing Room

break room, storage rooms and smaller conference rooms.

As expected there are some unique police-specific features including interview rooms, a briefing room, prisoner processing room, in-person line-up facilities, and an incident command room. We also have unique storage needs with an armory and shelving for officer duty bags. Most patrol officers only spend a small portion of the working day in the facility. With a field based assignment they carry their office in a duty bag. However, the cramped awkward ergonomics of the squad car and lack of a phone requires us to also provide officer work stations.

The remaining space in the Central District is considered a secure area and only accessible when accompanied by staff. Our hallways connect with other police units in the building including the Officer in Charge (Shift Commander), Criminal Intelligence Section, Personnel and Training, and the administrative offices of the Chief. Records, Parking and Property Section are in different spaces on the same floor.

Much of the space in the secured area is what you would find in a typical office lay-out. This includes the offices of the command staff, the detective and officer work areas,

Intoximeter

While we were displaced in the East Main Street offices, we had some impact on the neighbors. I know that the parking situation became more complicated with numerous squads needed to put officer resources out to the neighborhoods, and the parking restriction on the south side of the street for squads.

I want to thank you for your patience.
