

East Side Pressure Zone Conversion – November 11, 2009

Due to weather related construction delays, the conversion of your neighborhood water pressure has been delayed until the morning of Wednesday November 11, 2009. As reported earlier, this revision will increase your water pressure from 15 to 25 pounds per square inch. This conversion will improve water flow to your home and fire protection to your neighborhood. You do not have to do anything to prepare for this change and it should not impact your home's plumbing.
